

Bring Back The Rain

Calman Hart

We were raining cats and dogs the day I left her
I said I had to get out of the storm
She said we could make it if we work together
But I thundered off and I slammed the door

Now I'm alone in my place in the sun
Wondering what in the hell have I done

Bring back the rain to my heart
Who knew a blue sky could be so dark
I was a fool to think her love
Wasn't worth fighting through the storm
I'd rather weather the tears
Than live in the sunshine without her here
If this is how it feels when the sky is clear
Bring back the rain

I miss the colors of her changing seasons
I miss the flashes of light in her eyes
I miss the bluster of her joyful breezes
I miss the clouds of her wistful sighs

Now the days wander by, so still and so dry
And there's nothing but empty sky

Bring back the rain to my heart
Who knew a blue sky could be so dark
I was a fool to think her love
Wasn't worth fighting through the storm
I'd rather weather the tears
Than live in the sunshine without her here
If this is how it feels when the sky is clear
Bring back the rain
