

She's So Beautiful

Written by Calman Hart

I called her up and said, "Hey, babe,
I got last minute tickets to the baseball game, but we gotta go right now."
She said, "I can be ready in five minutes
Just pull up outside, honk your horn and I'll come out."
Sure enough she came running down her front steps
Looking like she just rolled out of her bed.
Her hair was a disaster
So she tied it back and stuck a Red Sox cap on her head.
She was wearing some old sweats
I said "Babe, it's gonna be hot.", she said "I did not have time to shave my legs."
Then she tried to put some lipstick on in the car
But we hit a pothole and she smeared it all over her face

She's so beautiful
Smokin' hot
She's so beautiful
Even when she's not

Well her girlfriend called me up from a bar one night about 2 am and said,
"You'd better come get her, she's had too much to drink."
So I hopped in my car, drove down there, picked her up, and took her to her house
Then I held her hair back while she threw up in the kitchen sink.
She stumbled to the bathroom, and I helped her get undressed
Then I tucked her in her bed.
She slurred the words "I love you"
Then she fell asleep with her mouth all slack-jawed open like she was dead

She's so beautiful
Smokin' hot
She's so beautiful
Even when she's not

My knees were shaking as she walked down the aisle
All our friends and relations turned their heads and smiled
I was watching their faces as she passed by each row
I could see they were whispering, "She's so beautiful."

They were putting tubes in her arms as I held her hand and stood at the side of her hospital bed
Her hair was all matted and stuck to her skin, and her cheeks were all puffy and red
Every now and then she twisted up her face like they were tearing her insides apart
Then she bore the most beautiful child, and I just stood there choking on my heart

She's so beautiful
Smokin' hot
She's so beautiful
Even when she's not
So beautiful
She's still smokin' hot
She's so beautiful
Even when she's not
Hot
